

2022 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #31a

Beekeeping in North Carolina has been challenging. A lot of hot weather and heavy rain. I feel for those in Kentucky and other places facing far worst problems. Flood, Fire, Drought. I have so much to be thankful for.

I am now looking at August and September (both months can still give us some hope for honey flows of aster and goldenrod). I saw some goldenrod in the mountains of North Carolina just showing color.

Exhausted is the way some beekeepers describe working bees in this hot weather. If you are working bees, drink a lot of fluids.
