

2023 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #24a

I gave a talk this week to Johnston County beekeepers about summer management and set up a table for those present to taste 10 samples of honey. The honey samples were of various varieties and the comments I received were interesting. I am always facing the problem of what am I going to write about each week. Next week's article will include the way I built the honey shadow box shown at the beginning of this weeks article. A number asked how I made it.

I am also distressed to see products sold that take advantage of the good name "Pure Honey!" Marketing has become the thing in our time. How can one make more money? This article shows one example.

I am sending a pdf file of last weeks #issue 23 notes along with this weeks notes. I was having some computer issues and sent the notes out in MS Word. Some of you contacted me that you could not read the notes as received on your devices.

That problem has been taken care of, I hope!
