

2023 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #30a

This weeks issue of my notes is about handling working outside in hot weather and the beginning of some articles about honey. This week I am starting on one of the characteristics of honey -- granulation. Since I retired from having a lot of hives of bees and selling my farm, I have had to deal with honey that has granulated in 5 gallon buckets and jars I filled some time ago. Thus, I thought it might be good to share how I handle both buckets and jars when the honey in them does granulate.

It turned out that this is a larger topic than just one issue. Stay turned for more.
