

2024 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #34a

Not much is going on in my bee yard. I have started my winter prep by selecting two outstanding queens to manage hopefully into 2025. Weather here in Raleigh has been wet with temperatures varying from hot to comfortable. In some cases, very humid.

The topic of this newsletter is about making some adjustments in hive numbers and some pictures of abandoned hives of bees I have seen. I am going back thru old pictures I have taken and will be sharing some of them in future articles.

There is going to be a slight change in the number of issues I publish to the end of 2024. Starting with this September issue, only two issues will be published each month until 2025. Anyone wanting to read old articles are able to visit the website of the 2 C and a B www.ccbee.org

"

This organization has supported me over many years. They carry current and past issues of my newsletter and offer the beekeeping community an outstanding source of beekeeping information.

Visit them at <http://www.ccbee.org> for an outstanding web site.

2 Cs and a Bee
Beekeepers' Association

"Encompassing Blair, Cambria, and Clearfield counties and including beekeepers from around the state and region who share our common goals"

Our Objectives: The advancement and improvement of the beekeeping industry and the state inspection. The eradication of diseases in all apiaries. The disbursement of knowledge regarding the value of the honeybee as a pollinating agent and the value of the honey as a food.