

2024 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #8a

Time is moving on -- Spring is around the corner. Here in North Carolina some beekeepers are reporting seeing queen cells. This issue will begin a series of beekeeping issues that need to be addressed now. Keeping bees is time consuming and requires constant attention.

Weather conditions this week varied between weather when hives could be opened and rainy periods. It is hard to schedule a time to visit a hive when weather decides when it can be done -- but that is beekeeping. To my friends in northern states -- envy our weather here in the south. You still have some time to relax and read. Our bees are now driving us and we are on their timeline.
