

2023 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #22a

I am not sure what effect all that smoke from Canada is having on your bees. If you live north of us here in Raleigh, I would appreciate some feed back on observations you have about any bee issues.

This week's notes are just a reminder that work still needs to be carried out with bees and what some of you might check for. Friends have moved bees to the mountains to get sourwood honey and weather conditions look good for a great harvest this year. David Heilman [Ohio Honey Farms] provided me with information about Ohio honey conditions.

With everything happening, it just reminds me that each region of the country has a different time line for what bee work is needed.
