

2025 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #4a

I sometimes wonder if those receiving these notes read them. I had one response from a reader that corresponds with me on a regular basis. That beekeeper wrote: I hate to bring this up, but you were wrong when you used carbon dioxide in the newsletter. It should be carbon monoxide. Would you please correct the use of Carbon dioxide with Carbon Monoxide under the title paragraph Winter Tasks, last sentence when you get a chance to review it sometime in the future. I do appreciate feedback on my articles and if any of you reading it have a comment to make about the content, just fire off an email to me.

Issue # 4 is related to the weather we are having right now in Raleigh. But it also recognizes that weather is going to have some chain-like effects on beekeeper in weeks ahead. Freezing temperatures and snow have had an impact on Southern States. Northern beekeepers are accustomed to snow and cold weather. Just hang in there, all of you! Warmer weather is coming.

I am getting a lot of new requests to be added to the newsletter and for the next several issues I will be reminding those new readers that back issues can be found on various bee club web sites. These note have been carried for some time by an outstanding Pennsylvania bee club. Some of my contacts with a few of its members goes back a long way in the past.
